

Bone-Joint

The Challenge

The incidences of arthritis and bone diseases are on the rise. Bone and joint disease in children was nearly unheard of 30 years ago. Much of this disease is due to being deprived of the nutrients that are essential for healthy bones and joints. Bones are actually organs just like the heart and liver. Americans typically cannot get from the food supply the vitamins and minerals necessary to keep bones and joints in good health.

The Solution

Since many Americans today have joint complaints including arthritis, rheumatism, lupus and fibromyalgia, there are many products on the market intended to help such people. But most of these products are NOT 100% food nor do they contain all the nutrient factors needed for optimal joint health. The Natural Health Clinic believes that nutritional supplementation should be made from functional foods for better cellular absorption, which is why we came up with 100% food Bone-Joint.
